

10.3 & 10.4 key term crossword puzzle

Across

4. A _____ shows the amount of energy that moves from one feeding level to another in a food web.
5. The organism that is killed, is the _____.
9. The behavior and physical characteristics that allow organisms to live successfully in their environments.
12. A _____ is the differential survival and reproduction of individuals due to differences in phenotype.
13. Consumers that only eat animals are called _____.
14. The struggle between organisms to survive as they attempt to use the same resources.
15. An organism that obtains energy by feeding on other organisms is called a _____.

17. A relationship in which both species benefit is called _____.

20. Consumers that only eat plants are called _____.

21. A _____ is a series of events in which one organism eats another and obtains energy.

22. Organism that lives on or in is called a _____.

Down

1. A relationship in which one species benefits and the other species in neither helped nor harmed is called _____.

2. The organism that benefits is called _____.

3. An interaction in which one organism kills another for food is called _____.

6. Carnivore that feeds on the bodies of dead organisms is called a _____.

7. One organism living on or inside another organism and harming it.

8. Consumers that eat both plants and animals are called _____.

10. The organism that does the killing, is a _____.

11. A _____ consists of the many overlapping food chains in an ecosystem.

16. _____ is a close relationship between two species that benefits at least one of the species.

18. A _____ breaks down wastes and dead organisms.

19. The role of an organism in its habitat, or how it makes a living, is called a _____.