

Name: _____

Date: _____

Annelids

Across

4. part of the earthworms digestive system that stores the food before it get ground

7. five large blood vessels that are found towards the front of the earthworm.

9. small bristles that an earthworm used to grip into the soil to move

12. the concentration of sense organs on the anterior end of the animal.

13. a fluid filled cavity that gives houses the internal organs of an animal.

14. the type of gut system where an organism has separate ends and one end is used only for ingestion and one end is used solely for egestion

Down

1. an organism that does not have any bones

2. the eathworm has a true coelom found within its mesoderm and is therefore defined as being.

3. able to be cut through multiple planes to produce equal halves

5. having both male and female reproductive structures/ the ability to impregnate oneself.

6. the type of symmetry that is displayed in the earthworm where an organism is only able to be cut in half through one plane.

8. the earthworm is made up of many smaller sections along its body.

10. a bundle/swelling of nerve cells

11. the part of the earthworm's digestive system that grinds the food