

CNS Infections and SCI

Across

4. In bacterial meningitis, CSF analysis results would show glucose to be low or high?
8. What measures should be instituted to prevent meningitis?
10. What is the most serious complication with Guillain-Barre syndrome? (two words)
13. A noninvasive way to assess for neurogenic bladder is? (two words)
14. The term used to describe difficulty swallowing is?
16. With the patient lying supine, you raise one leg with knee flexed 90 degrees and attempt to straighten the leg.
17. The term used to describe weakness in the muscles used for speech is?
18. The term used to describe paralysis of all four extremities with the degree of impairment in the arms depending on the level of the injury is?

Word Bank

Kernig's	Fall	autonomic dysreflexia	respiratory failure
bell's palsy	fever	opisthotonos	low hepatotoxicity	bladder scan	dysarthria	high
dysphagia	vaccines	nuchal rigidity	Guillain-Barre
Droplet	paraplegia	tetraplegia	Brudzinski's

20. What is the most serious adverse effect of the use of the drug rifampin?

Down

1. A syndrome causing an acute, rapidly progressing, ascending, segmental demyelination with edema and inflammation is?
2. What is the term used to describe massive uncompensated cardiovascular reaction by the body due to a SCI at T6 or higher due to sensory stimulation below the injury? (two words)
3. A newly-admitted patient suspected to have bacterial meningitis would be on what type of precautions?
5. Inability to bend/move neck to touch chin to chest indicates? (two words)
6. The classic triad of symptoms seen in someone who has bacterial meningitis is: headache, nuchal rigidity, and what else?
7. A patient who has Guillain-Barre syndrome would be on what type of precautions?
9. With the patient lying supine, when you flex the neck forward, the patient's hips and knees involuntarily flex.
11. An acute peripheral facial paresis of unknown cause; inflammation of CN VII on one side of the face in the absence of any other disease (e.g. stroke)
12. Hyperextension of the neck and arching of the back caused by severe meningeal irritation
15. The term used to describe paralysis and loss in sensation in the legs is?
19. In bacterial meningitis, CSF analysis result would show protein to be low or high?