

COM-1010 Chapter 6

Across

6. What type of cultures prefer infrequent touching, little shared gaze, larger physical distance, and indirect body orientation?

8. What type of cultures prefer frequent touching, shared gaze, close physical proximity, and direct body orientation?

10. What helps control turn taking during interpersonal encounters?

11. What type of messages occur when your verbal and nonverbal communications match?

12. What features are impermanent and easy to change?

15. What's the distance between others while communicating called?

16. What type of messages occur when verbal and nonverbal behaviors contradict each other?

17. What type of communication is the transmission of meaning through an individual's non spoken physical and behavioral cues?

18. What is the feeling of bonding with others called?

19. What substitutes verbal statements?

20. What do communication scholars refer to touch as?

Down

1. What accents verbal messages?

2. What type of appearance speaks volume?

3. What's used to communicate nonverbal messages?

4. What are touching gestures that serve a psychological or physical purpose?

5. What are guidelines for when, where, and how to appropriately express emotion?

7. What is intentional or unintentional behaviors that depict actual or feigned emotion?

9. What involves behaviors used to exert power and influence over others?

13. What are objects you possess to communicate to others called?

14. What do communication scholars refer to body movement as?