

Ch 7-4: Industrialization: New Ways of Thinking

Across

3. 1860s, German socialist adapted Marx's beliefs to form

4. John Stuart Mill believed government should step in to improve the hard lives of the _____

11. Social democracy was a political ideology in which there is a gradual transition from capitalism to

13. Karl Marx's cowriter for The Communist Manifesto was

15. Because of the views of David Ricardo and Thomas Malthus economics became known as the

17. Robert Owen refused to use _____ labor.

18. Main proponent of _____-_____ economics was Adam Smith, author of The Wealth of Nations

19. Marx believed capitalism created prosperity for only a few and _____ for many

21. Jeremy Bentham advocated

Down

1. John Stuart Mill believed that _____ were entitled to increase their happiness. He also believed they should not increase their happiness by harming workers

2. Malthus urged families to have fewer children, discouraged charitable handouts and _____

5. _____ later came to refer to a system in which governments led by a small elite controlled all economic and political life

6. Socialism grew out of the _____ faith in progress and human nature and its concern for social justice.

7. Marx said the "haves" were the _____ and the "have nots" were the proletariat

8. Early socialist were called _____. The name implied that they were impractical dreamers

9. To Bentham, all laws or acts should be judged by their "utility" - did they provide more _____ or happiness than pain?

10. Smith believed a _____ would produce more goods at lower prices, making them affordable to everyone.

12. When the people as a whole rather than private individuals own and operate the means of production

14. Malthus and Ricardo believed individuals should improve their lot through thrift, _____ and limiting the size of their families

16. Thomas _____ predicted that population would outpace the food supply.

20. Marx predicted a struggle between social classes that would lead to a _____ society.