

Name: _____

Chapter 11: Chemical Dependency

Across

- 10. "Why can't I do it? My parents did"
12. Chronic, recurrent misuse of chemicals.
15. Orderly progression from one drug to another, increasing the heavier use.
16. Probably the most difficult child in a dysfunctional family to help, may exhibit health problems.
18. Consequences of personal choice
19. Every theory hold some elements of truth
20. Having multiple determinants.

Down

- 1. Inherited and transmitted predisposition.

Word Bank

- | | | | |
|-----------------------|-------------------|---------------------------|------------------------------|
| mascot | defense mechanism | disease model | moral model |
| alcoholics anonymous | lost child | hero | genetic predisposition model |
| biopsychosocial model | abuse | alcohol | parental influence model |
| inpatient treatment | scapegoat | addiction | gateway model |
| cognitive model | lifestyle model | behavioral learning model | final common model |

- 2. Rewards outweigh the destruction.
3. Thoughts or beliefs are causative factors
4. Physically, chemical addiction is a cellular change that occurs with the increased use of most depressant drugs.
5. Drinking is caused and maintained by association between alcohol and positive rewarding experiences.
6. Number one abused substance, found to be most harmful out of all legal and illegal drugs.
7. Rehab facilities that get rid of the outside factors

- 8. Denial, Displacement, Fantasy, Projection, Rationalization, Internationalization, Minimizing, Reaction formation, Regression, and Repression are all what that a drug abuser may use?
9. The object of the chemically dependent parent's misdirected frustration and rage.
11. Group where members can share their stories
13. Drug use is seen as an aberrant condition afflicting otherwise healthy people, leading to physiological addiction.
14. He/she is the family's high achiever, and as such appears quite ambitious and responsible.
17. This role is also referred to as the 'family clown,' or simply the 'clown.'