

Chapter 11 PP Vocab

Across

3. The manner in which cells or tissues respond to surrounding fluid
 6. The hard, plastic device that provides compression on the tubing
 7. A sterile medication container
 8. A vertical laminar airflow hood that is used in the prep of hazardous compounds
 13. An electrolyte or medication injected into an lvp or svp solution for patient admin
 14. A small container made of thin glass that is used as a reservoir for certain single-dose parenteral medications
 15. The date or time after which a csp is no longer sterile, stable, or effective

16. A small volume iv infusion containing medications
 17. A sterile fluid added to a powder to reconstitute, dilute, or dissolve a medication
 18. The calibration in drops per milliliter on iv sets
 19. A solution that contains dissolved mineral salts
 20. A hazardous agent that reduces or prevents the growth of cancer cells

Down

1. A sterile solution containing a concentration of 0.9% sodium chloride in water
 2. Any drug that destroys cancer cells
 4. The pressure required to maintain an equilibrium, with no net movement of solvent

5. An inadvertent introduction of a small piece of rubber closure into the solution while removing medication from a vial
 9. A device inserted into a vein for direct access to the cardio system
 10. The small, open space just below the spike adaptor where the drops are counted by the nurse
 11. The end of the tubing to which the needle is attached
 12. The manipulation of sterile products and devices in such a way as to avoid contamination by disease-causing organisms