

Emotions Crossword Puzzle

Across

1. theory states that people use their current moods to make decisions and judgments
5. processes emotions
8. law that states that performance increases with arousal up to an optimal point
10. type of motivation; desire to perform an activity because of the value or pleasure it gives
11. proposal from Freud which states that people are motivated to seek pleasure and avoid pain

Down

2. feelings that involve physical responses, changes in thoughts and in actions, and personal evaluation

3. theory states that emotions and bodily responses both occur due to the ways that parts of the brain process information

4. theory that states that emotions result from the experience of psychological activation or increased autonomic response

6. type of motivation; desire to perform an activity because of the external goals toward which that activity is directed

7. external objects or goals that motivate behavior

9. type of emotions that include remorse, guilt, shame, etc; blending of primary emotions