

Name: _____

Ethics

Across

4. Current levels of behaviors, before intervention takes place
8. In consequential or teleological ethics: behavior is judged on the basis of its?
10. Who does the Behavior analysts involve in the planning of and consent for behavior-change programs.
11. According to Green (1990), the change agent should determine whether an intervention can be carried out, legally, practically and ?
13. Behavior analysts need to obtain this from the client before they can implement the behavior-change program
16. Behavior analysts always look into the possibility of this kind of procedures, before considering punishment procedures

Down

1. What does Green (1990) provide the reader, in order to implement the Least restrictive use of reductive procedures
2. Behavior analysts describe what kind of conditions to the client? (the conditions that are necessary for the behavior-change program to be effective).
3. Ethics code 4 is about
5. Behavior analysts recommend this rather than punishment whenever possible.
6. According to code 4.03, Behavior-Change Programs should be?
7. According to Bear this a bad technique for accomplishing desirable behavioral changes

9. Code 4.11 (a) states: Behavior analysts establish understandable and objective criteria for the discontinuation of the behavior change program. This means criteria should be ?
12. Green (1990) indicates that Behavior Analysts should revise the intervention based on this
14. According to code 4.01, Behavior analysts design behavior-change programs that are conceptually with behavior-analytic principles. (fill in the blank)
15. Behavior Analysts should avoid what kind of reinforcers?