

Female Pelvis/GI Tract

Across

- 3. The part of uterus which contracts
- 4. Fluid can collect in this space
- 10. The endometrium is the thickest measuring up to 16mm during this phase
- 11. This ligament attaches uterus to bladder
- 12. This is the longest portion of the fallopian tube

13. Muscular layers of bowel have this appearance on ultrasound

Down

- 1. This layer of the myometrium is closest to the endo
- 2. A Dominant follicle develops at this stage of the menstrual cycle
- 5. This portion of the fallopian tube is closest to the ovary

- 6. An AP measurement is taken at the widest portion of this structure
- 7. This layer of endometrium is shed during menstruation
- 8. A blind end is the most important feature of this structure
- 9. This occurs most often in the inguinal region