

Forensic Psychology

Across

1. violence committed with a purpose or in a planned or organized manner
3. a mathematical procedure that follows a specific sequence
4. repeat criminal behavior
6. The development of anxiety, dissociation, and other symptoms that occurs within 1 month after exposure to an extreme traumatic event and whose duration s between 2 days and 4 weeks.
7. the authority of a court in any particular location

10. An eyewitness's process of deciding, when looking at sequential lineup, whether any of the people shown in lineup match the perpetrator
13. cases that are concerned with private rights, as disputes between two cases
14. a legal tactic by which a person charged with a crime claims the past victimization justified his or her retaliation
15. any confession or admission to a criminal act that confessor did not commit

16. a criminal defense that claims a defendants actions are automatic or involuntary

Down

2. intersection between psychology and the justice system
5. literally "guilty mind"
8. a criminal act has occurred
9. a statistical term related to the consistency and stability of offending by an individual
11. Deoxyribonucleic acid
12. a clinical term describe deficits in interpersonal and emotional functioning