

Grammar

Across

2. incomplete sentence/ lacking a complete subject or predicate
4. a punctuation mark indicating a pause between parts of a sentence
6. this happens when the writer shifts from one tense to another without any reason. (Past tense - present tense)
8. this happens when the writer shifts from one person to the next without any reason.
9. it is used to create a paper trail that the reader can follow to locate the sources you are writing about.

10. double quotation marks around the first speakers words

Down

1. These strengthen or emphasize the importance of a word or phrase in a sentence
3. misplaced words in a sentence or words that almost always distort the intended meaning
5. a sentence usually containing two or more clauses not connected by the correct conjunction or punctuation
7. usually the name of a book or short story. Usually written in all caps or italicized