

Name: _____ Date: _____

IC3 Computer Fundamentals Module 1

1. Computers that are similar to notebooks but have a screen that swivels or folds over are called_____.
A. area.
2. Computers that are linked together form a_____.
B. corporations.
3. How many bytes in the wordsupercalifragelisticxpealidotious_
C. Tablets.
4. The area on the far right side of the task bar which contains the clock is called the_____. Notification
D. GHZ
5. What measuring unit describes 100,000,000?
E. Network.
6. The keyboard shortcut to paste is?
F. Macintosh.
7. The speed of the processor is measured in "Both MHZ and
G. keys
8. Mainframe computers are commonly found in ___- Government agencies, large
H. Minicomputers.
9. PDA stands for____ Personal Digital
I. Computer.
10. Computers run ____ which process ____ and perform tasks based on the instructions provided. Programs,
J. RAM.
11. What is the name of the code that computers use to understand out language?
K. Assistant.
12. Data is defined as____ Informations stored on a
L. bar.
13. Computers that process data at a slower rate and in smaller volumes than mainframes are called____
M. System.
14. How many characters in a byte?
N. instructions.
15. A small, palm sized computer that is used as a personal organizer is called a _____.
O. Mega.
16. DOS stands for____ Disk Operating
P. 1
17. The name of the operating system PRIOR to windows was____
Q. gigabyte.
18. There are generally two types of microcomputers systems which are____ PC and
R. PDA.
19. A program is defined as____ A set of
S. DOS.

20. Portable microcomputers similar to the desktop models in speed, performance and usage are called____ Laptops and T. system.
21. A workstation is essentially____ Any U. CTRL+V
22. The area to the right of the START button is called the____ Quick launch V. Binary.
23. If I need to store a set of encyclopedias that have 498,000 pages, what is the minimum amount of memory I will need to store the books? A W. data.
24. The keys across the top of the keyboard, F-1-F-12 Function X. Notebooks.
25. Although several people can use minicomputers at the same time, as the number of users increase___ There would be a decrease in the speed of the Y. 34
26. What is the acronym for the memory that is volatile? Z. computer.