

Immunology and Pharmacology

Across

3. transmission that delivers organisms via the air.
 5. transmission that occurs when microorganisms are suspended in the air for long periods of time.
 8. microscopic living creatures capable of reproduction and transmission in specific circumstances
 9. needles or scalpels or other sharp instruments that are capable of causing a penetrating or puncture wound of the skin.
 10. an injection given under the skin without a needle, using the force of the liquid under pressure to pierce the skin.

11. written form refusal.

Down

1. transmission involves animals and insects that are capable of transmitting diseases.
 2. clean and free from infection.
 4. injection of a liquid substance into the body via a route other than the alimentary canal.
 6. microorganisms that can cause infectious disease.
 7. caused by the bloodborne virus HIV.

Word Bank

Vector

Airborne

AIDS

Declination form

Sharps

Microorganisms

Jet injection

Medical Asepsis

Parenteral

Pathogens

Droplet