

Lab Week Cross Word

Across

2. A _____ is used to screen for diabetes and involves drinking Glucola.
5. These crystals are found in acidic urine and have a bipyramidal shape, commonly referred to as an "envelope."
7. This white blood cell has large, coarse, purplish blue granules.
10. What color scrubs are the lab employees required to wear?
15. _____ is run daily to ensure the analyzers and reagents are working properly.
16. This PPE item is worn on the face every day.
17. _____ is a protozoan flagellate that can be found in urine samples but typically causes vaginal infections.

18. What is it called when the red cells look like a stack of coins?

19. What is the precursor to a blood cell?

20. What does PPE stand for?

Down

1. The Tomah lab participates in this organizations Laboratory Accreditation Program.

3. The _____ is used in microbiology to rapidly identify and classify bacteria.

4. _____ is another name for pinworm.

6. The 1st choice for a venipuncture is the _____ vein.

8. _____ tubes are used for capillary draws.

9. _____ occurs when red blood cells rupture and release their contents into the surrounding fluid.

11. _____ is the interface layer of anticoagulated blood between plasma and RBCs containing WBCs and platelets.

12. What does CBC stand for?

13. _____ eggs can be contaminants in urine samples since they are laid in the perianal/perineal region at night.

14. This piece of lab equipment is used to examine body fluids at higher magnifications than the human eye.