

Library Terms

Across

2. A reference to a book, magazine or journal article containing all the information necessary to identify and locate that work.
5. The person(s) or organization(s) that wrote or compiled a document.
8. A group of letters and/or numbers that identifies a specific item in a library
10. Stealing someone else's published ideas or information and presenting them as your own

11. Study area for one person

12. A software program that enables users to access Internet resources

13. A separate file sent with an email message

Down

1. An alphabetical list of words, limited to a special area of knowledge, with their definitions.

3. A security process that validates the identity of users before allowing them access to certain information."

4. An alphabetical arrangement of key words, context lines, and the place where they are found in a book or collection of writings.

6. The tangible result of effort by a writer, researcher, artist or composer.

7. A collection of information stored in an electronic format that can be searched by a computer.

9. A summary or brief description of the content of another longer work.