

Literary Terms

Across

1. Giving non-human creatures or objects human qualities or characteristics
3. Comparing two different things that are somewhat similar
4. An understatement that expresses an idea by negating its opposite
5. An expression that has been overused to the extent that its freshness has worn off
8. A play on words (sometimes achieved through the use of words with similar sounds but different meanings)
13. A situation requiring a decision to be made between two equally attractive or two equally unattractive scenarios or alternatives

14. Drawing a conclusion based on premises or evidence
15. The literal meaning of a word
17. A direct comparison of two different things
18. The forming of a word by imitating natural sounds
19. Harsh language or tone intended to ridicule
20. Using figures of speech and vivid images to appeal to one of the senses

Down

2. Repetition of initial sounds in successive words
6. An expression that contains two joined contradicting words

7. Using one part of an object or thing to describe or represent the object or thing as a whole
9. A statement consisting of two parallel parts where the second part is structurally reversed
10. A comparison of two things using "like", "as" or other specifically comparative words
11. Presenting material in such a way that prepares the reader for what is to come later
12. The attitude of the writer
16. Repetition of words or phrases at the beginning of consecutive sentences or lines