

MLK Jail Speech Vocab

Across

2. a suspension of activity
 3. seeming to say two opposite things though both those things may be true
 6. belonging or peculiar to some particular part of the country; local
 11. the composition of precise claims about a topic, including relevant and sufficient evidence, and valid reasoning
 12. unable to leave a place because of illness, imprisonment, etc.
 13. an element of persuasion that refers to the emotional content of your presentation
 14. a seemingly absurd or self-contradictory statement or proposition that when investigated or explained may prove to be well founded or true
 15. of or pertaining to existence (human life)
 16. religious leaders
 20. the refusal to comply with certain laws or to pay taxes and fines, as a peaceful form of political protest

21. discriminating against a group, especially on the basis of race

22. belonging to the same class or group; united by the same occupation, interests, etc.; being in the same condition
 23. something transmitted by or received from an ancestor or predecessor or from the past
 24. an element of persuasion that refers to your character, ethics, and your believability when you speak
 25. aware; having knowledge

Down

1. an author or speaker's main point about an issue in an argument
 4. smaller, related points that reinforce or advance the central claim
 5. a state of mutually dependent relationships
 7. a question asked that does allow a reader to create their own response, but does not necessarily need one

8. an element of persuasion that refers to the logic, the words, and the reasons in your argument

9. denying, disputing, or contradicting
 10. the logical relationships among ideas, including relationships among claims and relationships across evidence
 17. the topical and textual facts, events, and ideas from which the claims of an argument arise, and which are cited to support those claims
 18. people who persistently annoy or provoke others with criticism, schemes, ideas, demands, requests, etc.
 19. the art of effective or persuasive speaking or writing, especially the use of figures of speech and other compositional techniques