

Qualitative Research

Across

2. The process of learning and constructing the meaning of human experience through intensive dialogue with persons who are living the experience?

10. Type of study that researches questions about human experiences

11. A method that is used to construct theory where no theory exists, or when existing theory fails to explain a set of circumstances?

12. What part of the study describes limitations and further areas for research?

13. Summarize the findings and compare them to the existing literature

14. What type of setting does qualitative research occur in?

Down

1. A research method that uses systematic approach to understand the past through collection, organization, and critical appraisal of facts?

3. The goal of this type of action research is to facilitate change within a community with the participants involved in all steps of the change process.

4. A method that focuses on a scientific description of interpretation of cultural or social groups and systems?

5. The expansion of research strategies in a single study or multiple studies?

6. Involves combining or integration of qualitative and quantitative research and data in a research study (two words)?

7. The last name of the nursing theorist who focused on recognizing life patterns, studied through multiple interviews and collaboration.

8. When the researcher identifies personal biases about the phenomenon and sets them aside when engaged with the study participants?

9. A sampling group consisting of particular people who can shed light on the phenomena under study