

Reflection of Meaning and Interpretation/Reframe

Across

- 6. A behavioral theory with an emphasis is on sequences of behaviors and thinking and what happens to the client
- 8. Sifting through our interior and exterior experiences to determine their origin
- 10. A useful way to discover the background of a client's meaning-making
- 12. Theory where individuals are dependent on unconscious forces
- 15. Provides another frame of reference for considering problems or issues
- 17. Reveals new perspectives and new ways of thinking beneath what a client says or does.

- 18. A theory which features decision making and thinking about the process of making decisions

Down

- 1. The goal is to help the client find the story that builds on their strengths and helps them find deeper meanings and purpose
- 2. Meanings are close to core client experiencing. Encourage clients to explore their own meanings and values in more depth from their own perspective. Questions to elicit meaning are often a vital first step.
- 3. Associated with the Native American Indian, Dene, and Australian traditions.
- 4. Either explicit or implicit, may underlie mixed and confused feelings expressed by the client.

- 5. Become clear through your careful listening and questions designed to elicit meaning issues from the client

- 7. The person is situated in a cultural or environmental context and social workers need to help clients interpret and reframe their issues
- 9. Brief methods seek to help clients find quick ways to reach their central goals
- 11. Two or more ideas are brought together, providing the client with new insight
- 13. Meaning, value, reasons, intent, cause
- 14. Author of the book "Man's Search for Meaning"
- 16. A more systematic approach to meaning and purpose.

Word Bank

Reframe	Psychodynamic	Implicit meanings	Key words
Person-centered	Linking	Solution-focused	Multicultural
Conflicting values	Frankl	Reflection of Meaning	Interpretation
Storytelling	Discernment	Cognitive	Discernment
Decisional	Vision quest		