

Research Terms Quiz

Across

5. What do we call the original information such as letters, autobiographies, interviews, etc.
8. What is the failure to give proper credit when using an author's words or ideas in a paper?
9. How many parts must be filled in on each note card for a smooth transition?
13. What are the 4x6 index cards called that record the notes taken from the source?
14. What is the name of the group who will read the research paper?
16. What do we call the information that is derived from, or about, the primary sources such as encyclopedias?
17. What way must you arrange the Works Cited?

18. What do we call those brief references in parentheses that are used throughout the paper to give proper credit to the sources used within the paper?

19. What is the reason for writing the research paper?

20. What must you write that gives shape to your research paper? It orders and arranges your paper, and your research paper will follow its organization.

Down

1. What is used to give reliable information for the research paper such as books, articles, electronic materials, etc. ?

2. What is the subject that is being researched?

3. What do we call that list of sources at the end of the research paper?

4. What do we call those phrases that has the author's name, a strong verb, and the material taken from the author?

6. What are the quotes taken directly from an author?

7. What do we call the 3x5 cards used to record information about the source's publishing information?

10. What is a restatement of information written in your own words that allows for more detail?

11. What is that sentence or two that states both your topic and what you will say about it? It explains the theme of your paper.

12. What is the highly condensed information that is typically one fourth to one third of the length of the original information?

15. What is the the attitude or feeling that the writer's words express?