

Security Through Policy

Across

3. Defines the goals and elements of an organization's computer systems.

10. It is known as a living document

11. Is a document which outlines and defines acceptable methods of remotely connecting to the internal network.

12. It refers to a network device which blocks certain kinds of network traffic, forming a barrier between a trusted and an untrusted network.

13. Is a set of rules by an organization to ensure that all users or networks of the IT structure within the organization's abide by the prescriptions regarding the security of data stored.

14. Protect users and data, application security has become an important consideration for businesses.

Down

1. Protects the company's reputation, the general email policy covers what is an acceptable use of email in the workplace.

2. Is a set of rules applied by the owner, creator or administrator of a network, website, or service, that restricts the network.

4. Is a branch of computer security specifically related to the Internet.

5. Is designed to protect organizational data stored on the equipment or media being removed from service.

6. Helps organizations prevent unauthorized data access and protect themselves from the potential damage.

7. is a set of rules by which those people who are given access to company technology and information assets must abide.

8. Any activity designed to protect the usability and integrity of your network and data.

9. Help your organization safeguard its hardware, software, and data from exposure.

Word Bank

Firewall

Remote Access

Network

Acceptable Use

Email Security

Information Security

Physical Security

Cyber Security

Data Loss Prevention

Internet Security

Security Through Policy

Media Disposal

Application Security

Computer Security