

Social Cognition

Across

2. An oversimplified image of a person or people who belong to a particular group
3. Discrimination against a person based on their age
7. A learned idea we have about ourselves, others, objects, experiences or events
8. Not hiring someone because of their gender is a form of this.
9. The process by which people explain the causes of their own and other people's behaviour.

10. A negative emotional attitude held towards members of the a specific social group.

Down

1. The psychological discomfort that arises when our attitude and behaviour are at odds with each other.
4. A component of the attitude that consists of the feelings we have towards an object or person.
5. The invisible physical space around us that is ours alone.
6. A belief that people generally get what they deserve