

Name: _____

Socialization and Social Construction

Across

4. process of learning a whole new set of social values, beliefs, and norms. Often deliberately and through and intense social process

7. A theory that essentially views social life as a theatrical performance in which we all actors according to roles, scripts, costumes, and sets. (Advanced by Eric Goffman)

10. an institution that a person in totally immersed in, and that controls every aspect of their daily life. All activity happens in the same place with the same single authority

11. a social position into which one enters voluntarily

13. responsibilities and behaviors associated with a certain social position

14. a social position that someone is born into or otherwise placed involuntarily

15. incompatibility of duties and behaviors associated to a single social position

Down

1. incompatibility of responsibilities across multiple different social positions

2. internal sense of the expectations of others in any setting, regardless of if we've been in that situation before

3. method for studying social reactions in which focus is placed on the way we make sense of our world and convey this understanding to others to produce a shared social order.

5. one social position within a set that one prioritizes over all others

6. all social positions held by an individual at any given time

8. The process by which we all learn to become a functioning member of society

9. recognizable social position that someone occupies. A police officer or student, for example

12. The individual identity of a person as perceived by that same person