

Teaching Philosophies

Across

4. stresses that students should learn to challenge oppression

6. a multifaceted activity that involves making observations, posing questions about the subject matter, and conducting research or investigations to develop answers

8. a U.S philosopher, social activist, and teacher who was an active scholar and educator at Teachers College, Columbia University

10. is an educational philosophy that emphasizes social justice and a curriculum promoting social reform

11. students who choose their own course of study as part of their effort to figure out their place in the world and the meaning of their lives

12. education in the fine arts such as painting and music

14. a Brazilian whose experiences living in poverty led him to champion education and literacy as the vehicle for social change

Down

1. a type of teaching based on extensive discussion with students

2. the largest labor union and professional interest group in the United States, it represents public school teachers and other support personnel

3. the practice of placing students in different classes or courses.

5. an educational philosophy that stresses active learning through problem solving, projects, and hands-on experiences

7. an educational philosophy that emphasizes enduring ideas conveyed through the study of great works of literature and art

9. an educational philosopher and professor at the University of Chicago and Columbia University in New York

13. an educational philosophy holding that the purpose of education is to learn specific knowledge provided by core academic disciplines such as mathematics, science, literature, and history.

Word Bank

Social Reconstruction

Essentialism

Perennialism

National Education Association

Maxine Greene

Socratic Method

tracking

John Dewey

Critical Theory

Existentialism

Inquiry

Paulo Freire

Progressivism

Aesthetic Education