

Terms Puzzle 1

Across

4. Ability to retrieve or input data into an information system.
5. A technologically based system designed to operate in a healthcare environment.
6. This essentially is an electronic version of a patients' health record.
8. Unstructured and raw facts that result from empirical observation of a physical phenomenon.
9. Organizations having a network of providers under contracts to offer services to policy holders.

10. Top level information system executive who is responsible for managing information within an organization.

12. An input device that usually consists of keys similar to those on a typewriter that are pressed to enter letters.

13. Achieving the best possible operational performance that takes into account the need to meet demands and constraints as well as to conserve resources.

14. The goals, values, beliefs, management style, and power of top management of an organization.

Down

1. A detailed compilation of data elements with information on the meaning, use, and authorization of users of the data elements.

2. The application of ICTs to medical information transfers for patient and clinical care services delivery in the patients place of domicile.

3. Using electronic systems to assist and enhance the communication of a prescription.

7. It is based on the premise that all software should be developed out of standard, reusable components.

11. The programs used to direct the functions of a computer system.