

Types of Learning

Across

- 5. Rose is studying penguins and icebergs in the Antarctic as part of a study abroad program. Her research is highly hands-on a requires consistent reflection. This learning process is known as _____
- 7. Mrs. Mahoney plans her lessons according to the principles of _____. This means that both students with disabilities and students without disabilities benefit from the flexibility in the education she provides.
- 8. In Mr. Polito’s 7th grade social studies class, students with disabilities participate and work in a classroom together. This is called _____
- 9. Mrs. Johnson loves to use the App, Kahoot in her third grade classroom, which allows her to incorporate many games into her lessons. This application is known as _____
- 10. Matias is taking an English class. The class is held half in-person an half online, allowing Matias to have some control over his own learning. This kind of learning is known as _____

- 11. _____ allows students to take online classes based on their own schedule within a specific timeframe. Students usually communicate with one another using discussion and message boards

Down

- 1. Lily graduated high school with a certification in cosmetology. She was in a _____ program.
- 2. Teachers use _____ - _____ learning when they take into account the research available on the brain in relation to learning
- 3. It is really difficult for Anne to read because she has dyslexia. It is also hard for her to distinguish between similar sounds. Anne has a _____
- 4. _____ takes into account the diversity and academic levels of different students in order to meet the needs of every individual. Adaptive learning is an example of this.
- 6. A large chunk of Mark’s ESL class was held in the local community center where he volunteered. This is an example of _____ learning.