

Understanding Culture

Across

3. a social group or culture's informal norms that distinguish how one should express themselves
7. the strength of societal social hierarchy—the extent to which the lower ranking individuals of a society accept and expect that power is distributed unequally.
8. one that's based on valuing the needs of a group or a community over the individual
10. They prefer to multi-task, or work on different activities at the same time
12. the customs, arts, social institutions, and achievements of a particular nation, people, or other social group
15. having or showing devotion to the affairs and interests of this world.
17. how cultures differ on the amount of tolerance they have of unpredictability
18. members of a society who don't conform to the dominant culture

19. a culture reflects a preference toward past, present, or future thinking
20. which information is communicated primarily through language and rules are explicitly spelled out

Down

1. a social group with which an individual does not identify
2. all group stereotypes and interpersonal impressions form along two dimensions: (1) warmth and (2) competence.
4. a range of cognitive, affective, and behavioural skills that lead to effective and appropriate communication with people of other cultures
5. a society which is characterized by individualism, which is the prioritization or emphasis of the individual over the entire group
6. those in which the rules of communication are primarily transmitted through the use of contextual elements and are not explicitly stated
9. This means that they have a linear time orientation where only one thing can be accomplished at a time
11. the capacity or ability to direct or influence the behavior of others or the course of events.
13. preconceived opinion that is not based on reason or actual experience.
14. a social group to which a person psychologically identifies as being a member.
16. a grouping of humans based on shared physical or social qualities into categories generally viewed as distinct by society.
