

Word Masters

Across

2. n. details, considerations, or pieces of information of little importance or value.

5. v. to cause (someone) to become motionless with horror, wonder, or astonishment.

6. each of two or more projecting pointed parts

7. adj. (of a person or animal) tall and slim with long, slender limbs.

8. adj. of, resembling, or fit for a monarch, especially in being magnificent or dignified.

12. v. to move in a slow, heavy, awkward way.

14. (adj) not valid or legally binding (n) a completely empty space (v) declare that (something) is not valid or legally binding

16. (adj) especially of a person's body; thin, supple, and graceful

17. n. extreme poverty; destitution.

18. (n) a strong wooden or metal post with a point at one end, driven into the ground to support a tree, form part of a fence, act as a boundary mark, ect. (v) to support (a tree or plant)/mark an area with stakes so as to claim ownership of it

22. v. to make full use of and derive benefit from (a resource). n. a bold or daring feat.

23. adj. (of a person or body part) lithe; supple. v. to warm up in preparation for exercise or activity, especially sports.

24. v. to take (a machine or structure) to pieces.

25. n. critical observation or examination.

Down

1. n. a thing belonging or appropriate to a period other than that in which it exists, especially a thing that is conspicuously old-fashioned.

3. v. to arouse the curiosity or interest of; fascinate.

4. n. blood that has been shed, especially as a result of violence.

9. v. to pierce or transfix with a sharp instrument.

10. v. tremble or totter, typically because of old age

11. (v) to secretly allow (something considered immoral, illegal, wrong, or harmful) to occur

13. adj. of words or the person speaking them) fluent and voluble but insincere and shallow.

15. adj. old-fashioned

19. adj. (of work) not requiring much skill and lacking prestige. n. a person with a menial job.

20. n. disagreement between people. v. to disagree

21. adj. (of premises) having no fixtures, furniture, or inhabitants; empty.