

Writing & Rhetoric 1301

Across

- 6. Foundational concepts and ideas about writing. These can sometimes change how you feel about reading and writing.
- 8. Different texts talking to and influencing each other or the current writing.
- 9. A statement that asserts something to be true.
- 10. Something that has actual existence.

- 11. The people who are intended to read or listen to discourse. Who the author has in mind while creating.
- 12. Topic, Conversation or Debate
- 13. The information of the reading.
- 14. The author's purpose, context and affects.

Down

- 1. A community that shares the written debate.
- 2. The reuse of information of some text.

- 3. What is the discourse about? Why is it needed? What should it accomplish?
- 4. The role of each part of the text.
- 5. Factors in the situation context that may affect the achievement of the rhetorical objectives; factors that modify the exigence.
- 7. Practices developed in one context that can be imported into others.